

Piotr Gondek: Problems of Railway Subgrade Operations in the Mining Damage Area

The article describes the basic problems of the railway subgrade operation in the mining damage areas. It depicts the necessity of applying radical solutions in order to provide proper functioning of the rail transport in the areas with mining damage. The article presents the possibilities of solving the problems of railway lines operation in the mining damage areas.

Keywords: railway subgrade, mining damage